AGENCY PROFILE

River Valley Child Development Services is a non-profit organization that has been a leader in early childhood education since 1971.

The agency began humbly when Dr. Norma Gray was asked to pilot the Region III Early Childhood Demonstration Center, a component of a statewide system of regional early childhood centers. The purpose of the center was to demonstrate developmentally appropriate programs for preschool. It has since grown into an agency that houses approximately 140 employees and serves a wide range of needs for children, families and communities.

Our agency's main office is located in Huntington, West Virginia; however, we have offices in Charleston, Clarksburg, Logan, and Parkersburg allowing us to provide some services for the entire state of West Virginia.

Our services include: professional development, hands on assistance for child care providers, child care subsidy, early intervention, nutrition training and reimbursement for providers, facilitation and preparation of statewide conferences, and direct care for children through a child care center and school age care.

If your goal is to have a rewarding career while making a difference for children and families, River Valley Child Development Services is the place for you!
